

You can cite journal articles (Anderson, Burt & Cindle, 2014). You can also cite essays in a book (Henri, 2004). Citing books is easy (Dee et al., 2004). We can also cite working papers (Lee & Morris, 2014). Furthermore, you can cite web sources (Web Resource Organization, 2012). Finally, we can cite newspaper articles (Norton, 2009).

References

- Anderson, Annie, Bobby Burt & Catherine C. Cindle (2014) This is a journal article. Journal Article 1(1): 1–10.
- Dee, Devin; Ellen East, Fred F. Fitz & Genny Graham (2004) Book (2nd Edition ed.). New Have, CT: Book Publisher.
- Henri, Harry (2004) An essay in a book. In: Ida Inman (ed.) A Collection of Essays in a Book. New York: Incollection Book Publisher, 9–33.
- Lee, Lynn L. & Martha Morris (2014) A working paper. Working paper. Department of Working Papers, Working Papers University (www.working.edu/lee/newtheory.pdf).
- Norton, Nancy (2009) A newspaper article. News Article Times 4 December (<http://newsarticletimes.com/dec-4-news.html>).
- Web Resource Organization (2012) A Report on the Web (www.webreports.org/2012_report).